The news of the fight at the dugout had spread with great rapidity through the country and by the time the two panting men rushed up to the locomotive, 100 farmers and rail way laborers were after them. One farmer, armed with a shotgun, caught sight of Vandine's face as he looked out of the cab window when the train started, and he turned loose with both barrels. A number of shots struck Vandine in the head and face and one hit him in the throat causing him trouble, but it did not decay the depart ure of the outlaws.

After two miles had been fivered by the train, the men ordered fihe engineer to slow down and, leaping to the ground, disappeared in the woods.

After the train had carried Vanding and Niedermeier away Detective Sheehan wired to Chief of Police O'Neil, asking that men be sent out with riffes. In a short time Assistant Chief of Police Schuettler and fifty officers armed with rifles were on the way to Millers.

The Pennsylvania road sent a special train with officers to Liverpool.

Bandits Nearly Exhausted.

When they left the train both bandits were nearly exhausted and unable to travel. The country at that place is rough, sandy and cut up by gravel pits. It is ground to travel over which would soon exhaust a vigorous man, and the two desperadoes made slow progress. The farmers, railway laborers and officers of the Pennsylvania railway were coming up fast and soon were close on the fugitives' heels. It was easy to track them in the newly fallen snow and the hunt was speedily closed. The men were seen as they dodged about in the sand dunes and the farmers, most of whom were armed with shotguns, closed on them Neidermeier received a charge full in the head, and the blood streamed fown his face and into his eyes so that he could barely see. The shot grazed Vandine's head, carrying off some of his hair. The posse was closing in on all sides. There was no escape and it was evident to both men that the time had come to surrender or fight to the death. Both men were heavily armed and able to take more lives before they lost their flat in New York. The rent is $6,000 a year, and there are thousands in New York who pay more than that.

The Vanderbilt flat is in Madison avenue, 161 and 163. It is midway between Thirty-second and Thirty-third streets, sandwiched in between a row of boarding houses on the east side of the way. The apartment house rejoices in the euphonious name of the Warrington.

It was only a few weeks ago that the Vanderbilts, principally for novelty's sake, made up their minds to try a flat for the winter. They have been staying in Newport and have decided to return there early in the spring, after two or three months in town and perhaps a flying trip down south during the raw weeks of March and early April. As a matter of fact, two apartments have been knocked into one so as to make rooms of the necessary size. Whether the multimillionaire tenants are in Europe or Kamchatka, the flat will be swept and dusted daily. to be ready for immediate occupancy.

Mrs. Vanderbilt already has settled upon the arrangement of the six rooms at her disposal. She has decided to dine downstairs at a restaurant whenever she and Mr. Vanderbilt are at home, so there is no dining room problem. There are in the Warrington establishment a head valet and assistants to care for the men's clothes and to do the hundred and one odd little things needed every day by a man of fashion. A full corps of maids is also at the call of the women of the house. The Vanderbilts will have only breakfast in Dinner will be taken in the public dining room, where to each family a separate table is assigned. It looks more like a dining room of some big private residence. A waiter will be detailed to attend to them alone. Fresh flowers will be provided for the table at each meal, and all butter, eggs, milk and vegetables they require will come from a private farm owned by the apartment house.

The south room of the suit will be the drawing room and the one adjoining a library and den. The two north rooms of the suit will be her room and Mr. Vanderbilt's. The baby and the nursemaid will have the two rooms in the rear, and the other servants will be assigned to rooms in the servants' quarters on the top floor. There is a bathroom on each side of the hall.

The servents of the house have a distinctive livery, such as private families of wealth now require. The men who will wait on the Vanderbilts wear clawhammer coats of brown cloth tricked out with brass buttons.

Cincinnati Banker Hires Colored Boy as Wedding Mascot.

Howard S. Rodgers of Cincinnati, vice president of the Merchants' National bank, recently hired Stanley Mason, dwarf colored newsboy, to act as his mascot when the banker, who is thirty-six years of age, went to the courthouse to secure a license to wed Miss Anna H. Orr, aged twenty-six. daughter of Dr. George P. Orr, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. Before taking the oath, as is necessary when a marriage license is issued. Rodgers carefully rubbed his hands over the colored boy's head.

The group presented a queer sight on the streets going and coming from the courthouse. The bridegroom to be and his best man, Attorney Dan Wilson, both big men, in tall silk hats and long Prince Albert coats, marched on either side of the colored mascot, who is scarcely three feet tall.

The boy was well paid for his trouble by the banker, who considers the money particularly well invested.

Newest Fur Is Carneal.

Dealers are showing another novelty in furs, says the New York Press. It is called caracal, or Persian lynx, and by means of dyeing and pressing under hot frons it may best be compared to baby lamb. Usually caracal is softer than the average lynx and therefore is quite expensive. Black is the usual color of the commercial article, but when the small animal roams at large its coat is between a wine color and brown. When pressed it shows a glossy coat, but this artificial treatment is not regarded as advisable usually. Caracal thus treated soon regains its natural appearance.

A Good Beginning.

Robert Dowthitt and Grace Tyrell of Ashmore, Ill., went to Terre Haute, Ind., recently to be married. The groom had no money to pay the license fee of $2, but a kindly clerk issued it on credit, says the Chicago Record-Herald. The bride gave Justice Church her ring as security for his fee and $1 cash be advanced to set them up in housekeeping.

CLUB FOR LONELY WOMEN

Plan of Ravenswood (III.) Ladies to Cheer Sisters Tied to Homes.

A club for those women in Ravenswood, Ill., who, while provided with the necessities of life, through being tled down to home and the lack of acquaintances have little opportunity for social pleasures is contemplated seriously by their neighbors, who already have a well established organization, says the Chicago Record-Herald.

Finding no poverty in the north shore community, the members of the Servants of House Have Distinct | Ravenswood Women's club sought some way in which their organization could do good. It was found that many young matron in the United | women in the vicinity were in need of States, will keep house in a six room | companionship, something to widen their horizon, hitherfo confined to the narrow limitations of home. These it is planned to benefit in every way pos-

The subject was discussed at length at a recent meeting of the Women's club held in the clubhouse. It is proposed to allow the new club the use of the Ravenswood club's rooms at specified times and to repeat the programmes of the older organization for the benefit of the women who are beginning their club life. Mrs. Irving Washington, chairman of the day, named a committee of five members of the Ravenswood Women's club to investigate the field in Ravenswood and look into the advisability of forming such a club.

The idea originated from remarks by Mrs. John McAuliff, who said: "I know two or three women in Ravenswood who are not starving for material things, but yet have not enough money to secure anything beyond a bare existence. They are lonely. They are suffering for companionship and sympathy. You have heard the story of the old lady who, when given a Thanksgiving dinner in a basket, sat down and cried, saying. 'It wasn't food I wanted, but folks."

Mrs. Mary M. Betts, president of the Ravenswood Women's club, addressed the chair and said, "I make a motion that a club among these women be formed by our club and that we mother it, send speakers to it and see if we can't help it."

"I am not fond of this mothering business," declared Mrs. Irving Washington. "It does not show the right democratic spirit. I don't propose to mother it any more than to originate it. We want a club here where lonely women can come. We want it to be a club where the women can bring with them the child or even a dozen children who cannot be left at home

The motion was modified to provide for the appointment of a committee of five to investigate and report plans and Chiengo Woman's Divorced Husband Is Her Employee.

Helmess could not attend wife's divorce suit in Judge Tuthiil's court at Chicago the other day because Mrs. Helmess, who is head of the department in which he is employed in a downtown department store, could not let him off.

Hereafter Helmess must not only report for orders to his divorced wife, but he must pay her alimony of $5 weekly, and that may come hard, for Mrs. Helmess told the court that heretofore she had always supported her husband. "I paid the rent and bousehold expenses for six years," the wife explained. "You have not asked for alimony," said the court.

"No," Mrs. Helmess replied, with a smile. "All I care for is the divorce." "Well, I'll allow you alimony of $5 a week. As head of Mr. Helmess' department I suppose you can see that he pays It?"

"I can," the department head anawered.

"I wonder whether she will discharge her ex-husband or raise his salary when she gets back to the store?" whispered a woman who was waiting her own turn for divorce.

Lean Statesmen In Luck.

The members of the house are complaining a good deal about the crowded condition of the hall since the seats for the accommodation of the increased membership were placed, but they are informed by Elliott Woods, the superintendent of the capitol, that the best thing possible was done. The lean members will be able to endure it, but the fat men will be obliged to spend much of the time in the smoking room. says the Indianapolis News. The seats have been placed so close together that men of average girth cannot sit side by side without touching elbows.

A CAMP COMMISSIONER'S VIEWS.

Ars. Fawcett Says There Are Signs Everywhere of Restored Activities of Normal, Wholesome Life-Free Farm Schools Provided For Young Boers-Poor Railroad Mgnagement.

Progress in South Africa is described in an article by Mrs. Millicent Garrett Fawcett in the Contemporary Review detailing her recent observations of the country in contrast with what she saw as a member of the camp commission which, when spoken rapidly, sounded during the war.

"It is impossible," says Mrs. Fawcett. "to exaggerate the difference between 1901 and 1903. Within an hour after landing at Cape Town it was manifest. The first thing that forced itself upon even the most casual observation was the different look of the animals. In 1901 the teams of wretched mules did not look as if they had spirit for one kick between them. In 1903 they looked as wicked and cheerful as only mules can look. In 1901 the carcasses of sheep which we inspected in the concentration camps often did not weigh more than eighteen pounds each. We normal proportions.'

The order of the day is "rebuilding, restoring, repairing. Everywhere were signs of the restored activities of normal, wholesome life-trees being planted, wells being dug, furrows to carry water being constructed and land being plowed and cultivated. The government, through the repatriation department, plowed 30,000 acres of land for the people and in replacing 70,000 Boers upon the land expended more than $12,500,000 in setting them up with ani- that she wanted red. And she got what mals, building material, seeds, vehicles she wanted. Mr. Carroll wouldn't take and agricultural implements."

The concentration camp schools have been replaced by free farm schools. Wherever thirty children can be promised the government advances the means to make a school. These are still often held in marquees or in bulldings of crude brick which will not last, but are cool and comfortable. By the end of June the number of children in went to see Speaker Cannon the other these rural schools had nearly reached day to ask about their committee the number of those in the camp schools places, says the Washington correat the end of their existence. And Mrs. Fawcett tells this story: "In Cape Colony the leading inhabitants of a well known place about twenty-five miles from Cape Town waited on the minister at the head of the railway administration and placed before him weighty arguments in favor of giving their town increased facilities. The minister listened and in reply said he had been much impressed by the facts laid before him. 'But,' he added, 'I have to remember, gen-I shall have to grapple with an increase of traffic.'

Spider, Once an Outcast, Makes Hi of National Horse Show.

The ht of the recent national horse show at New York was made by a litle poar named Spider, once an outcast and with pedigree and breeding lost in the dim shades of the past, says the New York World,

Spider's history and his triumph in the rias -for it was a triumph for a bony of anknown breeding to give the thampion Doncaster Model a hard rub for first honors and finally get away with the red ribbon-recalls the attempt of that practical joker, Brian G. Hughes, to take a blue ribbon with a reformed street car horse. Hughes once entered a borse that had formerly drawn a street car. He had fattened and groomed it and given it the aristocratic name of "Puldeka Orphan." suspiciously like "Pulled a car often."

Spider went in under no high sounding name. He was entered with pedigree unknown, and his history was truthfully stated. When in action he was picked by Marion Story, who judged the ponies, as the winner over Doncaster Model, considered to be the best harness and saddle pony in the world, a blue ribbon winner in both England and America.

Spider did not show so well at rest and was given the red ribbon, which greatly pleased little Lorena Carroll, the three-year-old maiden who owns him and who drove him to her governess cart in the ring.

A DOG'S TALE

By MARK TWAIL

[From Harper's Magazine For December.] My father was a St. Bernard, my mother was a collie, but I am a Presbyterian. This is what my mother told me. I do not know these nice distinctions myself. To me they are only fine, large words meaning nothing. My mother had a fondness for such. She liked to say them and see other dogs look surprised and envious, as wondering how she got so much education.

But indeed it was not real education; it was only show. She got the words by listening in the dining room and drawing room when there was company and by going with the children ment of taking a smaller stone and by account of Mr. Lincoln's to Sunday school and listening there, and whenever she heard a large word she said it over to herself many times and so was able to keep it until there was a dogmatic gathering in the neighborhood; then she would get it off and surprise and distress them all, from picious, and when he got his breath ed by the cord. "Five weeks ago," said a woman to me the other day, "I gave an evening affair to which fifty guests were invited. Out of these only one has paid me a party call. Of course I know that it is not indifference or ingratitude that has caused the omission, but I cannot help feeling it a little." The bread and butter letter, too, is not a mere functory matter, but a real demand with which we should comply. Every hostess is interested in the welfare of the guest who has lately been sojourning under her roof and whom she has just speeded with good will on her way. She wishes to know if the guest has arrived home safe and well, and not to comply with such wish shows one lacking in common courtesy. Yet it is a mistake which excellent people ten make. Few people forget to call on a bride. but how many remember the call due the bride's parents as the persons who extended the invitation to the wedding? Yet one is as binding as the other, except of course in cases where the bride's new home is at a great distance from that of her girlhood.

A Famous Knocker,

In the door of the north porch of Durham cathedral is a very ancient and grotesque mask of bronze, the empty eye sockets of which are thought to have been either filled with crystal eyeballs or to have had a lamp burning behind them.

This cathedral was in mediaval days a famous sanctuary where any culprit charged with crime could find inviolable shelter, kindly entertainment for thirty-seven days and then if still unjustified or unpardoned safe escort to the coast and, passage oversea. The only payment demanded was a full confession and a solemn oath never to return to England.

From a chamber over the north porch a monk watched continually to give immediate entrance to any fugitive, and as soon as this knocker on the door was grasped the rights of sanctuary were insured. The chamber was destroyed about a hundred years ago, but the famous Norman knocker still hangs in its place.-Pearson's Weekly.

The Young Men of Today. The young men of today are too fin-

There is not a young man in the country who would imitate Ben Franklin and march through the streets munching a loaf of bread while looking for employment. SOUTH AFRICA I.

How the Wounds of War A: Being Healed.

A CAMP COMMISSIONER'S VIEWS.

Irs. Fawcett Says There Are Signs Everywhere of Restored Activities of Normal, Wholesome Life-Free Farm Schools Provided For Young Boers-Poor Railroad Management.

Progress in South Africa is described in an article by Mrs. Millicent Garrett Fawcett in the Contemporary Review detailing her recent observations of the country in contrast with what she saw as a member of the camp commission during the war.

"It is impossible," says Mrs. Fawcett. "to exaggerate the difference between 1901 and 1903. Within an hour after landing at Cape Town it was manifest. The first thing that forced itself upon even the most casual observation was the different look of the animals. In 1901 the teams of wretched mules did not look as if they had spirit for one kick between them. In 1903 they looked as wicked and cheerful as only mules can look. In 1901 the carcasses of sheep which we inspected in the concentration camps often did not weigh more than eighteen pounds each. We thought twenty-five pounds per sheep rather good. In 1903 sheep, both alive normal proportions."

The order of the day is "rebuilding, restoring, repairing. Everywhere were signs of the restored activities of normal, wholesome life-trees being planted, wells being dug, furrows to carry water being constructed and land being plowed and cultivated. The government, through the repatriation department, plowed 30,000 acres of land for the people and in replacing 70,000 Boers upon the land expended more than $12,500,000 in setting them up with animals, building material, seeds, vehicles and agricultural implements."

The concentration camp schools have been replaced by free farm schools. Wherever thirty children can be promised the government advances the means to make a school. These are still often held in marquees or in buildings of crude brick which will not last, but are cool and comfortable. By the end of June the number of children in these rural schools had nearly reached day to ask about their committee the number of those in the camp schools at the end of their existence. WAIF PL .Y, PRIZE WINN.

Spider, Once an Outcast, Makes His of National Horse Show.

The best of the recent national horse show at New York was made by a litle poar named Spider, once an outcast and with pedigree and breeding lost in the dim shades of the past, says the New York World.

Spider's history and his triumph in the rias -for it was a triumph for a bony of anknown breeding to give the champion Doncaster Model a hard rub for first hopors and finally get away with the red ribbon-recalls the attempt of that practical joker, Brian G. Hughes, to take a blue ribbon with a reformed street car horse. Hughes once entered a horse that had formerly drawn a street car. He had fattened and groomed it and given it the aristocratic name of "Puldeka Orphan." which, when spoken rapidly, sounded suspiciously like "Pulled a car often." Spider went in under no high sounding name. He was entered with pedigree unknown, and his history was truthfully stated. When in action he was picked by Marion Story, who judged the ponies, as the winner over Doncaster Model, considered to be the best harness and saddle pony in the world, a blue ribbon winner in both England and America.

Spider did not show so well at rest and was given the red ribbon, which greatly pleased little Lorena Carroll, the three-year-old maiden who owns him and who drove him to her governess cart in the ring.

Spider is barely forty inches high. Joseph D. Carroll of the Fiss, Doer & Carroll Horse company saw him one and dead, had put on flesh and resumed | Sunday morning as he was being driven through Twenty-fourth street, in New York. He was attached to a peddler's cart and was driven by some boys who were making money out of him by letting east side children ride him a block for a penny. One of Carroll's men followed the boys and obtained the pony by paying $200. He was given to Lorena, Mr. Carroll's young daughter.

When she drove him into the ring her father told her to get the blue ribbon. She replied that she didn't like blue, that she wanted red. And she got what she wanted. Mr. Carroll wouldn't take $500 for Spider now.

A DOG'S TALE

By MARK TWAIT

[From Harper's Magazine For December.] My father was a St. Bernard, my mother was a collie, but I am a Presbyterian. This is what my mother told me. I do not know these nice distinctions myself. To me they are only fine, large words meaning nothing. My mother had a fondness for such. She liked to say them and see other dogs look surprised and envious, as wondering how she got so much education.

But indeed it was not real education; it was only show. She got the words by listening in the dining room and to Sunday school and listening there, and whenever she heard a large word "snapping" the upper branches. she said it over to herself many times and so was able to keep it until there was a dogmatic gathering in the neighborhood; then she would get it off and surprise and distress them all, from her for all her trouble. If there was a of a weight over a bough of the nut stranger he was nearly sure to be suspicious, and when he got his breath again he would ask her what it meant. And she always told him. Married Twice In Five Minutes.

A young man from San Francisco met his affianced bride in Abilene, Kan., by appointment. They went to a minister and were married with the tic. usual short ceremony, says the Abilene Chronicle. As the groom drew a roll of bills from his pocket to pay the preacher, the wedding ring, which he had forgotten, fell to the floor. The bride looked at the ring regretfully. though she said nothing of her disappointment at not being wedded by the ring ceremony. The preacher caught her look, however, and told the couple to stand up before him. Then he married them all over again, using the ring ceremony, to the very palpable pleasure of the young woman. As the pair left the parsonage the groom was heard to say, "Well, I guess we got all that was coming to us that time."

HOW TO GO NUTTING.

Looping the Boughs Is an Effective Way to Strip a Tree.

Not a few are the devices of skilled nutting. How often shall we see the novice crushing the green bur with a stone-and the chestnut by the same blow-or with many pains from the sharp spines trying to open the bur by hand. The nutter who is better versed has the trick, not mastered until some practice, of a peculiar quick tap of the heel-something between a blow and a cut-which at one deft side stroke lays open the nuts for the hand. FATE OF LINCOLN'S CANE.

War President's Cherished Walking

Stick Sold at Auction For $145. A walking stick which until the death of Abraham Lincoln was his therished possession and Ponstant companion was recently sold at public auction in New York. From $25, the first bid, the price advanced to $145, and it was sold for that sum to H. H. A metal band joins the handle to the stick, and this bears an inscription showing that the cane was prein 1860. On the handle is another plate which shows the late Frank B. Carpenter. the celebrated artist and personal friend of Lincoln, by Mrs. Lincoln.

In 1891 Carpenter was penniless and pledged the stick to his cousin, Fannie Mathewson, in return for a loan of $500. SYNDICATE DINNERS.

Each Woman Guest Selects and Contributes a Course.

A young society matron of Philadelphia has instituted a novel sort of dinper, says the Philadelphia Record. The young women have formed themselves into a sort of club, the mission of which is to give a very elaborate dinher once a month. The dinners are held at the different members' houses, but the hostess provides the servants and the flowers only. The novelty of the flub is in the way the food is provided. Each girl is intrusted with one course of the menu. It is her duty to decide what it shall be and arrange with the cook as to how she wishes it to be served. When all the guests are seated at the table, the butler announces every course by the title of the young woman who ordered and paid for it. There are charming little menus, too, on which is written "Soup a la Marie Wharton," "Roti a la Edith Burden," etc., which show who was responsible for every

The interest that is shown in the preparation and eating of these club dinners is very striking. Each girl tries to make her course the best and most popular, and in the evening votes are cast as to which was the most successful course.

Sir Henry Irving: My Dear Sir-I am a member of the electrical fraternity and saw your play of 'Dante' last evening. If I may lowed to express an opinion, I want to tell you that the infernal scene was very bad. The sunset ripple was weefully lacking in effect. It was certainly not true to nature, if it was so intended.

To which Sir Henry replies:

Really your criticism is quite apt. You see, the ripple got turned upside down that night by some mechanical error, and the rain, instead of falling down, fell up. I don't wonder you didn't think it true to nature. How could you?

And Sir Henry smiles audibly.

POINTS ON PANAMA.

Panama has an acreage of 31,571 square miles-nearly the size of the state of Maine.

Its population is 285,000, almost the same as that of the District of Colum-Its commerce, including both imports and exports, amounts to about $3,000,-000 a year. That is about $11 for each Inhabitant. The rest of Colombia has a foreign trade of less than $1 a head.

DON'T FORGET THEM.

The Party Call and the Bread and Batter Letter.

Do not forget your party call and your bread and butter letters, says the Boston Advertiser. They are in their way just as important as the party and the visit themselves and mean much to your hostess.

"Five weeks ago," said a woman to me the other day, "I gave an evening affair to which fifty guests were invited. Out of these only one has paid me a party call. Of course I know that it is not indifference or ingratitude that has caused the omission, but I cannot help feeling it a little." The bread and butter letter, too, is not a mere functory matter, but a real demand with which we should comply. Every hostess is interested in the welfare of the guest who has lately been sojourning under her roof and whom she has just speeded with good will on her way. She wishes to know if the guest has arrived home safe and well, and not to comply with such wish shows one lacking in common courtesy. Yet it is a mistake which excellent people often make. Few people forget to call on a bride, but how many remember the call due the bride's parents as the persons who extended the invitation to the wedding? Yet one is as binding as the other, except of course in cases where the bride's new home is at a great distance from that of her girlhood.

A Famous Knocker.

In the door of the north porch of Durham cathedral is a very ancient and grotesque mask of bronze, the empty eye sockets of which are thought to have been either filled with crystal eyeballs or to have had a lamp burning behind them.

This cathedral was in mediæval days a famous sanctuary where any culprit charged with crime could find inviolable shelter, kindly entertainment for thirty-seven days and then if still unjustified or unpardoned safe escort to the coast and passage oversea. The only payment demanded was a full confession and a solemn oath never to return to England.

From a chamber over the north porch a monk watched continually to give immediate entrance to any fugitive, and as soon as this knocker on the door was grasped the rights of sanctuary were insured. The chamber was destroyed about a hundred years ago, but the famous Norman knocker still bangs in its place.-Pearson's Weekly.

The Young Men of Today. The young men of today are too finicky-too much given to self analysis, too self pampering. Their shoes and neckties cost more each year than did the entire wardrobe of their grandfathers. They feel a sense of degradation in small beginnings and plodding, and they wait for success ready made to come to them. There is not a young man in the country who would imitate Ben Franklin and march through the streets munching a loaf of bread while looking for employment. He dares not, indeed, because society has become also finicky, and he would be arrested as a tramp. The young man of today wants capital. He cannot be president of a bank or judge of a court the first week he is from school, and he feels like the famous Eli Pussley, that he has "no chance."-Philadelphia Inquirer.

Blue Mountain Tea.

The foliage and flowers of all the goldenrods, says the Philadelphia Press, are imbued with an astringent principle and are moderately stimulant, so that their suitability for the manufacture of a domestic tea was recognized by the American colonists as long ago as when George III. was king over them. One species, the fragrant leaved goldenrod, known sometimes as Blue Mountain tea, possesses in addition the flavor of licorice. Drunk piping hot in the wilderness it makes a pleasant feature in the camper's limited menu. This especial kind of goldenrod begins to bloom quite early in the summer and is easy of recognition.

The Earthworm,

Among agricultural workers perhaps the earthworm receives the least attention. Its value to the land is seldom appreciated. It bores through the soil, making little tunnels in every direction, thereby admitting the air and moisture not only to the soil, but through the soil to the subsoil. During the process of boring it eats its way along, thereby grinding up the little particles of earth, rendering them finer and in better condition to retain moisture.

Laugh and Grow Fat.

"Laugh and grow fat" is an old saying, and there is more than a little truth in it, asserts a doctor. "The convulsive movements which we call laughter exert a very real effect upon the bodily framework. They cause the arteries to dilate, so that they carry more blood to the tissues of the body and the heart to beat more rapidly, so that the flow of the blood through the vessels is hastened. In other words, laughter promotes the very best cond tions for an increase of the vital processes; the tissues take up more nutritive material and the waste products are more promptly removed. A good laugh sends an increased flow of blood to the brain; this immediately causes that instrument of thought to work better, with the result that gloomy forebodings are sent packing."

Words and Ideas.

Definite words are necessary for the expression of definite ideas; hence scientific terms have to be employed. A term has one definite meaning which does not change with time. The rush of affairs drifts words from their original meanings, as ships drag their anchors in a gale, but terms sheltered from common use hold to their moorings forever. The word "let." for example, has drifted in 200 years from meaning "hinder" until now it means "permit," but the term "bisect" has remained unaltered in significance for centuries. - Engineering Record.

CANADIAN INDIANS.

An Old Trader Gives Evidence to Their Unvarying Honesty.

Says a man who has had some twenty years of experience in trading with Canadian Indians, "In all my woods life I have never known but one Indian liar." A cache, or provision station, is left unattended with perfect safety. for on the entirety of its stock may depend the life of many a man.

He who leaves provisions must find them on his return, for he may reach them starving, and the length of his out journey may depend on his certainty of relief at this point on his in journey. So men passing touch not his hoard, for some day they may be in the

"One comes unexpectedly upon a birch hanging from a tree limb," says the old trader, "or a whole bunch of snowshoes depending beneath the fans of a spruce or a tangle of steel traps thrust into the crevice of a tree root or a supply of pork and flour swathed like an Egyptian mummy lying in state on a high bier. These things we have passed as reverently as symbols of a people's trust in its kind.

"The same sort of honesty holds in regard to smaller things, ' have never hesitated to leave in my camp firearms. fishing rods, utensils valuable from a woods point of view, even a watch or money. Not only have I never lost any thing in that manner, but once an Indian lad followed me some miles after the morning's start to restore to me half a dozen trout flies I had accidentally left behind."

Origin of a Holiday.

The second week in August, if not one of great historical importance in old Amsterdam, is certainly one of martyrdom for the nervous and sensitive. An ancient custom prevails according to which the juveniles of the town are allowed to beat their drums for several hours during a whole week while parading the exchange. The story goes that about 200 years ago a plot was formed to blow up the ex change, but a small boy, happening to let his ball roll under the vaulted foundation of the building, discovered the barrels of powder which were to do the wrecking. So it was decided to reward the lad, and, on his being asked what he would like, the urchin said that he wished to be allowed to play at soldiers with his companions round the building, all being armed with drums. and to make as much noise as they liked during several hours of the day for one week every year. This custom is kept up, and, as all manner of instruments are called upon to represen a drum, tin kettles and saucepan lids not excepted, the din is something to be remembered.

Redundant.

Joseph was an excellent cook, but he was not what might be called an ac complished literary man. At the same time he conceived the idea that a cookery book from his pen would fill a long felt want. He set to work; but, feelmistakes in composition, he submitted the work to a prominent literary critic. who promised to go through the work and correct it where necessary.

After a day or two he brought it back. "Yes," he said; "it's all right so far as I can see, but I rather fancy you've been a little superfluous in your recipe for lemon pudding.'

"Have I? How's that?"

"Well, you see, you say here, 'Then sit on a hot stove and stir constantly." Now, I really do not see how any one is going to sit on a hot stove without stirring constantly, so I think you can do without that sentence, don't you

Hugo and His Disciple.

A young man, an admirer of the great poet, attended one of Victor Hugo's receptions, became engaged in argument and lost his temper. Hugo solemnly rebuked him, and he subsided. Presently the guests retired. One of them, however, had forgotten his umbrella and returned to get it. Looking through an open door from the vestibule, he perceived the young man on his knees before the poet, sobbing out his apologies for his disrespect, while Victor Hugo, with almost regal dign! ty, extended his hand to him and bade

A Case of Kidnaping.

The pretty baby had fallen asleep in ber perambulator in front of her father's house on a fashionable street. The nurse was nowhere to be seen. A shabbily dressed man, clad in black, looked at all the windows and saw that the blinds were drawn. It was the afternoon bour, when wealthy New York likes to drive in the park.

"Ah!" he exclaimed as he crep stealthily toward the sleeping child. "If I can only catch her before she wakes-so pretty, so peaceful! I know her father will be only too glad to pay my price!"

In two seconds he stood before the baby carriage, drew a black box from beneath his coat and snapped a rubber bulb directly in the baby's face. Then he put the black box beneath his coat and walked away with a smile of supreme satisfaction.

"Gee!" he exclaimed. "Such luck! Daddy will pay $3 for a dozen of those photographs; sure thing!"-New York

Oliver Cromwell.

Newburg priory claims the distinction of sheltering the remains of Oliver Cromwell. After the protector's death on his lucky day, Sept. 3, his body was embalmed and, after lying in state for some time, was interred with regal pomp in Westminster abbey. After the restoration his body, along with those of Ireton and Bradshaw, was exhumed and hanged on the gibbet at Tyburn. The heads, so the story goes, were struck off and placed on the top of Westminster hall, while the bodies were buried beneath the gallows. On the other hand, it is said that another body was substituted for that of Cromwell and that the protector was buried retly on the Hambledon hills. At all events, at the top of Newburg priory there is a narrow room, one end of which is occupied by a mass of stonework built into the wall. Here, it is said, the remains of Oliver Cromwell EYE, EAR, NOSE and THROAT.

The Lead Pencil.

The name lead pencil is a misnomer made correct by custom. The so called leads of a pencil are in reality a mixture of graphite and clay. Graphite is a word derived from the Greek, mean ing "to write." It is a native mineral carbon of black color and brilliant metallic luster. To the touch it feels smooth, somewhat like soapstone, and it breaks in a very flaky manner under a very light blow. It is so soft it will leave a trace on paper. It is sometimes called plumbago and has still another name - black lead - from which, of course, we get the name lead pencil Graphite is found in the oldest rock formations, and deposits are to be found in various parts of the world, the most famous being those at Altai, in Siberia, and at Ticonderoga, N. Y., in this country.

The rush of affairs drifts words from their original meanings, as ships drag their anchors in a gale, but terms sheltered from common use hold to their moorings forever. The word "let," for example, has drifted in 200 years from meaning "hinder" until now it means "permit," but the term "bisect" has remained unaltered in significance for centuries.-Engineering Record.

Children and Play.

Play distinguishes the higher from the lower animals, and it signifies possibility of education. Fishes do not play at all, the lower mammals can hardly be taught to play, and birds are entirely devoid of the instinct. But the kitten and the lamb are essentially playing animals. The human young. however, are the true players, and in reality it is play that develops them into manhood. "Children," says Dr. Hutchinson, "are born little amorphous bundles of possibilities and are played into shape."

A Doubtful Prospect.

"Dat wuz mighty poor comfort dey give Br'er Thomas on his sick bed." said Brother Dickey.

"What dey tell him?" "Preacher tol' him dey wuz a bright prospect ahead of him." "En what he say ter dat?"

"Tol' 'em dat what wuz a-worryin' er him-it wuz so bright it wuz blazin'!"-Atlanta Constitution.

CANADIAN INDIANS.

Old Trader Gives Evidence to

Their Unvarying Honesty. Says a man who has had some twenty years of experience in trading with Canadian Indians, "In all my woods life I have never known but one Indian liar." A cache, or provision station, is left unattended with perfect safety. for on the entirety of its stock may depend the life of many a man. He who leaves provisions must find them on his return, for he may reach them starving, and the length of his out journey may depend on his certainty of relief at this point on his in journey. So men passing touch not his hoard, for some day they may be in the same case.

"One comes unexpectedly upon a birch hanging from a tree limb," says the old trader, "or a whole bunch of snowshoes depending beneath the fans of a spruce or a tangle of steel traps thrust into the crevice of a tree root or a supply of pork and flour swathed like an Egyptian mummy lying in state on a high bier. These things we have passed as reverently as symbols of a people's trust in its kind.

"The same sort of honesty holds in regard to smaller things, ' have never hesitated to leave in my camp firearms. fishing rods, utensils valuable from a woods point of view, even a watch or money. Not only have I never lost anything in that manner, but once an Indian lad followed me some miles after the morning's start to restore to me half a dozen trout flies I had accidentally left behind."

Origin of a Holiday.

The second week in August, if not one of great historical importance in old Amsterdam, is certainly one of martyrdom for the nervous and sensitive. An ancient custom prevails according to which the juveniles of the town are allowed to beat their drums for several hours during a whole week while parading the exchange. The story goes that about 200 years ago a plot was formed to blow up the exchange, but a small boy, happening to let his ball roll under the vaulted foundation of the building, discovered the barrels of powder which were to do the wrecking. So it was decided to reward the lad, and, on his being asked what he would like, the urchin said that be wished to be allowed to play at soldiers with his companions round the building, all being armed with drums. and to make as much noise as they liked during several hours of the day for one week every year. This custom is kept up, and, as all manner of instruments are called upon to represena drum, tin kettles and saucepan lids not excepted, the din is something to be remembered.

Redundant.

Joseph was an excellent cook, but he was not what might be called an ac complished literary man. At the same time he conceived the idea that a cookery book from his pen would till a long felt want. He set to work; but, feeling that perhaps he had made some mistakes in composition, he submitted the work to a prominent literary critic. who promised to go through the work and correct it where necessary.

After a day or two he brought it back. "Yes," he said; "it's all right so far as I can see, but I rather fancy you've been a little superfluous in your recipe for lemon pudding." "Have 1? How's that?"

"Well, you see, you say here, 'Then sit on a hot stove and stir constantly. Now, I really do not see how any one is going to sit on a hot stove without stirring constantly, so I think you can do without that sentence, don't you

Hugo and His Disciple.

A young man, an admirer of the great poet, attended one of Victor Hugo's receptions, became engaged in argument and lost his temper. Hugo solemnly rebuked him, and he subsided. Presently the guests retired. One of them, however, had forgotten his umbrella and returned to get it. Looking through an open door from the vestibule, he perceived the young man on his knees before the poet, sobbing out his apologies for his disrespect, while Victor Hugo, with almost regal dignity, extended his band to him and bade him rise.

A MARVEL OF THE MAILS. Great Distances That Letters Travel at Small Expense.

If a man should start from New York and travel northward to Alaska. then down the coast to California and take ship to Manila and follow the lines of travel to Hongkong, to Singapore, to Canton, to Tokyo, to Vladivostok. to St. Petersburg, to Vienna, to London, to South Africa and finally to South America, touching on the way at several Pacific and south Atlantic islands and thence back to his starting point, he could travel a distance several times greater than the circumference of the globe. If he ordered his mail forwarded to him and left correct addresses behind at each place the letters would dutifully follow him and finally be delivered to him in New York a few days after his own arrival there.

All that he would have to pay extra for this remarkable journey of his mail would be a dollar or two in tolls, which would represent the charges for forwarding exacted by some of the countries through which it passed. There are in the post office department at Washington the envelope of a letter which traveled in this way 150,000 miles and another which came safely through a trip of 125,000 miles.-St. Nicholas.

A Case of Kidnaping.

The pretty baby had fallen asleep in her perambulator in front of her father's house on a fashionable street. The nurse was nowhere to be seen. A shabbily dressed man, clad in black. looked at all the windows and saw that the blinds were drawn. It was the afternoon hour, when wealthy New York likes to drive in the park.

"Ah!" he exclaimed as he crept stealthily toward the sleeping child. "If I can only catch her before sha wakes-so pretty, so peaceful! I know her father will be only too glad to pay my price!"

In two seconds he stood before the baby carriage, drew a black box from beneath his coat and snapped a rubber bulb directly in the baby's face. Then he put the black box beneath his coat and walked away with a smile of supreme satisfaction.

"Gee!" he exclaimed. "Such luck! Daddy will pay $3 for a dozen of those photographs; sure thing!"-New York

Oliver Cromwell.

Newburg priory claims the distinction of sheltering the remains of Oliver Cromwell. After the protector's death on his lucky day, Sept. 3, his body was embalmed and, after lying in state for some time, was interred with regal pomp in Westminster abbey. After the restoration his body, along with those of Ireton and Bradshaw, was exhumed and hanged on the gibbet at Tyburn. The heads, so the story goes, were struck off and placed on the top of Westminster hall, while the bodies were buried beneath the gallows. On the other hand, it is said that another body was substituted for that of Cromwell and that the protector was buried ecretly on the Hambledon hills. At all events, at the top of Newburg priory there is a narrow room, one end of which is occupied by a mass of stonework built into the wall. Here, it is said, the remains of Oliver Cromwell made correct by custom. The so called leads of a pencil are in reality a mixture of graphite and clay. Graphite is a word derived from the Greek, meaning "to write." It is a native mineral carbon of black color and brilliant metallic luster. To the touch it feels smooth, somewhat like soapstone, and it breaks in a very flaky manner under a very light blow. It is so soft it will leave a trace on paper. It is sometimes called plumbago and has still another name - black lead - from which, of course, we get the name lead pencil. Graphite is found in the oldest rock formations, and deposits are to be found in various parts of the world. the most famous being those at Altai, in Siberia, and at Ticonderoga, N. Y., in this country.

No Millionaires, No Progress. A country without millionaires will have few if any railroads, no modern sanitation, none of the devices and assistants of modern science. Poverty, ignorance, superstition and despotism are invariably the lot of the common people in any country where millionaires have not appeared or do not remain. Nobody can do very much for himself without doing something for others. No man ever acquired a million in legitimate business without benefiting the community perhaps to the extent of many millions. Millions nowadays can come only with an active, exceptional capacity for successful business. Successful business does not mean, as it did in the middle ages, the power to rob your neighbor. It means the power to serve the public better than your neighbor can serve it. Necessarily this comes through the development and use of superior machinery or better methods for producing wealth and doing business.-Gunton's

Wenriness In Metals,

It has been found that when animal matter (for instance, a muscle or nerve) is repeatedly irritated its sensitiveness wears off after a time. The deflection of the galvanometer needle is feebler and feebler. In fact, the muscle or nerve begins to show signs of fatigue. In the human body, of course, this fatigue is quite obvious. If we use a particular muscle or nerve continuously without giving it time to rest its original action soon becomes enfeebled. Professor Bose finds that metals betray exactly the same signs of fatigue under repeated irritation. - A. S. K. Ghosh in Pearson's Magazine.

HOLDS TWO SESSIONS.

Senate Sub-Committee Investigating Charges Against General Wood.

Washington, Nov. 2...-Two sessions were held Tuesday by a sub-committee of the senate committee on military affairs which is investigating the charges against General Leonard Wood, nominated by the president to be major general. An adjournment was taken until Friday, when Major Runie will be the first witness.

It was stated at the close of the last session that probably more than two weeks will be occupied in hearing the witnesses the committee already has determined to summon. Then if a committee is named to go to Cuba, an adjournment probably will be taken until some time next March, which is considered the best time to visit the island. Major Rathbone says he will go to Cuba at the same time for the purpose of pointing out sources of in formation which form the basis of many of his charges.

Opponents of the confirmation of General Wood openly express the opinion that the military affairs committee will report the nomination favorably to the senate, but declare that when this course is taken some charges will be presented to the senate which the committee has excluded from the testimony.

Estes G. Rathbone has written to Senator E. H. Platt requesting early action on his charges against Gerferal

GRAPE CENTER. Galt, Sacramento County, California.

To the people that want to come to California with the idea of locating where fruit and flowers of all kinds grow the year around, you will save money by writing to me. I can sell you good grape land, or for oranges, lemons or any kind of fruit for $40.00 per acre.

I also have a few farms that I can sell. For reference to reliability, I refer you to any oldtimer of Brainerd, Minn.

I have traveled all over the coast for nearly four years and I believe I have found the best locality. I have bought land here and intend to stay. Am right in the center of the state, less than 20 miles from the capitol of the state.

There Are Times When Enterprise Ceases to Be a Virtue.

"Young Brown is a smart fellow," said the manager of the collection department to the great lawyer.

"Yes? What's he been doing now?" asked the great lawyer.

"Why, he was in the office alone yesterday when he heard that Silk & Sat in were financially embarrassed. We were holding one or two claims against them, and he rushed out and slapped on an attachment just fifteen minutes before they closed their doors.'

"Got in ahead of every one, did he?" "Beat every other creditor," said the manager.

The great lawyer looked pleased. "It was a great piece of work," he said. "I like to see a young man with some enterprise and brains. What did you do?"

"I told him it was a good piece of work.

No Millionaires, No Progress.

A country without millionaires will have few if any railroads, no modern sanitation, none of the devices and assistants of modern science. Poverty. ignorance, superstition and despotism are invariably the lot of the common people in any country where millionaires have not appeared or do not remain. Nobody can do very much for himself without doing something for others. No man ever acquired a million in legitimate business without benefiting the community perhaps to the extent of many millions. Millions nowadays can come only with an active, exceptional capacity for successful business. Successful business does not mean, as it did in the middle ages. the power to rob your neighbor. It means the power to serve the public better than your neighbor can serve it Necessarily this comes through the development and use of superior machinery or better methods for producing wealth and doing business.-Gunton's Magazine.

Weariness In Metals.

It has been found that when animal matter (for instance, a muscle or nerve) is repeatedly irritated its sensitiveness wears off after a time. The deflection of the galvanometer needle is feebler nerve begins to show signs of fatigue. In the human body, of course, this fatigue is quite obvious. If we use a particular muscle or nerve continuously without giving it time to rest its original action soon becomes enfeebled.

Professor Bose finds that metals betray exactly the same signs of fatigue under repeated irritation. - A. S. K. Ghosh in Pearson's Magazine.

HOLDS TWO SESSIONS.

Senate Sub-Committee Investigating Charges Against General Wood.

Washington, Nov. 2...-Two sessions were held Tuesday by a sub-committee of the senate committee on military affairs which is investigating the charges against General Leonard Wood, nominated by the president to be major general. An adjournment was taken until Friday, when Major Runie will be the first witness.

It was stated at the close of the last session that probably more than two weeks will be occupied in hearing the witnesses the committee already has determined to summon. Then if a committee is named to go to Cuba, an adjournment probably will be taken until some time next March, which is considered the best time to visit the island. Major Rathbone says he will go to Cuba at the same time for the purpose of pointing out sources of information which form the basis of many of his charges.

Opponents of the confirmation of General Wood openly express the opinion that the military affairs committee will report the nomination favorably to the senate, but declare that when this course is taken some charges will be presented to the senate which the committee has excluded from the testimony.

Estes G. Rathbone has written to Senator E. H. Platt requesting early and feebler. In fact, the muscle or action on his charges against General

The soldiers arrived at 3:30 a. m. and an hour later were loaded into wagons and started on the forty-mile drive to the Little Bitter Root. Three hours later government officials came in by another trail and reported that Morrigeau was still on the reservation and defiant. They state that the Indian police positively refused to at tempt to eject the cattleman owing to their fear of the Nez Perces.

The Nez Perces are a band of about 100 under Chief Carrier Water and have been in isolated sections of the Flathead reservation for the past year. They refuse to recognize the federal officers or the Indian police and have staved off the Flatheads for months. Morrigeau has engaged the band to assist him, and unless Major Torrey and his soldiers get hold of the cattle before the Nez Perces are brought up, trouble is bound to occur. Troops sent out from Fort Missoula are all veterans and picked fighters and are expected to clearly outclass twice the number of Nez Perces. A courier arrived at Plains Friday evening to report that the troops were within two hours' march of the Morrigeau camp and had halted for the MAJORITY TAKEN TO TASK. Minority Protests Against Inactivity of the House.

Washington, Nov. 28 .- The house met Friday and adjourned until Tues day. The proceedings were marke by a debate on the motion to adjourn over, during which the minority too! the Republicans to task for not proceeding to the transaction of business. Mr. Williams (Miss.), the minority leader, protested against the inactivity of the house, asking if the majority were afraid to trust themselves. He said that while the speaker had not been able, as he knew, to name all the committees, there were matters the ways and means committee, which is already organized, could consider, cit ing among other things the resolution relating to Canadian reciprocity.

Mr. De Armond (Mo.) also criticised the Republican majority for its course

Mr. Payne (N. Y.), on whose request unanimous consent was given for de bate on the motion to adjourn over, replying to the opposition, took occa sion to say that the Republicans would hardly care to take up the question of tariff revision and disturb conditions on the eve of a presidential campaign. He also said the time was not op portune to consider reciprocity with Canada.

There was a party alignment on the vote on the motion to adjourn over, the Democrats voting against it.

MAJOR RUNCIE TESTIFIES.

Claims That General Wood Inspired Magazine Article. Washington, Nov. 28.-The senate committee on military affairs Friday heard Major James E. Runcie of Havana, probably the most important witness that will be offered by the opponents of General Leonard Wood in their attempt to prevent his confirmation as major general. Major Runcie was on the stand frequently during the day, telling the committee of a dinner at Santiago, Cuba, attended by himself, General Wood and Ray Stannard Baker, a newspaper man, at which, it is alleged, was planned the magazine article attacking Major General Brooke that has figured conspicuously in the Wood case. Major Runcie was stopped more than once during the course of his testimony and told to give nothing but facts of which he had personal knowledge. This did not exclude his story of the dinner incident which resulted in the issue of subpoenas for three other witnesses among whom is General Brooke.

In his testimony Major Runcie explained that he had acted as the confidential adviser of General Wood for nearly two years and that they live: together at Santiago. It was while they were living in the same house that Mr. Baker went to Santiago in search of material for a magazine article. A meeting was arranged be tween the men and a dinner followed, testified Major Runcie, at which they discussed the plan to have published an article which would exploit the success of General Wood in dealing with affairs at Santiago and draw a comparison with the situation at Havana unfavorable to the administration of General Brooke. Major Runcie declared that General
